

Corporativo Laudex SAPI de CV, SOFOM ENR

Credit lines for students

Corporativo Laudex SA de CV, SOFOM ENR (Laudex) is a non-banking financial institution that supports undergraduate and graduate students with loans to access education at private universities. Laudex was founded by a chemical engineer and MBA graduate from Stanford University, with the aim of helping provide access to private higher education regardless of the applicant's economic background. In Mexico, a significant deficit of high-quality public education exists and many families do not have the resources to send their children to a private university. Additionally, very few banks offer student loans, which has a negative effect on graduation rates. Laudex is able to provide the chance of better educational opportunities for many Mexicans by offering financial products aligned with students' needs at highly-competitive terms and conditions. Corporativo Laudex SA de CV, SOFOM ENR has been an Oikocredit partner since 2013.
